

Pedro's fanxiety reaches a boiling point.

As we hear "so take off all your clothes" in a sudden fit of impulsive madness, he lifts up his jersey over his head. A moment of slow motion makes the moment funnier.

Like if it were his own santo sudarium, his suffering gets printed with sweat in his jersey with a very funny suffering face. It's the sign that he needs to calm down. While we hear the song that sings again: its getting hot in here"

A friend of Pedro, Diego, has just discovered what is happening. He gestures to his friend as if to say, "look at him, again" with a smile. He knows how to solve the situation, so he grabs two Coors Light beers from the bar. One for him one for Pedro.

He brings Pedro his ice-cold Coors Light, as a solution to calm him down and cool off. Pedro has a magical moment as he briefly diverts his attention from the screen to accept the Coors Light.

